

In this video, I will demonstrate how to embed a Zeffy form onto a Hostinger site, creating something that looks like the Donate page on the Future Builders Foundation website, as you can see here. For the purposes of demonstration, I will be showing how to embed this into this test website I have here under My Websites; you are encouraged to create your own test website to embed the form.

First, you will go to the page you want the form to appear on. For me, I will be embedding a form onto the Donate page right here. As you can see, I already have some content on the page; if you want to have this content, you can find this text in the test file, which you can add to your website. Or you can put your own text too, it's up to you. Now, to embed, we are going to click in the section we want the form to appear in, and then click on this plus sign on the left side, 'Add element', and go over here to where it says 'Embed Code'. You'll see this box appear that says 'Your Custom Embed Code'; you'll drag this to where you want it. I want my form over here, so I will drag it here. And you can make it wider or skinnier depending on how much space you want the form to take up. I want my form to be a bit wider, so I will click this little square over here in the bottom right hand corner of the embed box and drag to make it wider.

I'm happy with how that looks, so now I will go back into Zeffy and find the form I want on the page. I want to embed the donate form on the page, so I will hover over that form, and on the right I'll click on where it says 'Share'. And on this window that pops up, I'll click on 'Embed on your website'. Now, make sure that 'Form' is selected up here, and NOT 'Button pop up'; click choose. It will generate code for you; click here to copy the code. Now, go back to Hostinger, and click on the embed code box you just placed. In this menu that pops up, click on 'Enter code'. Erase everything that's in here, and paste your code. If you want to try it yourself, you can find the embed code in the Test files since you don't have access to Zeffy yet. Just copy and paste that code into the Hostinger site builder and you should be good to go.

Now, it will look like it didn't work. For some reason on Hostinger you need to preview it to see it the first time and then it shows up in the editor. So let's click on Preview, in the top right hand corner. Now, as you can see, the form is there. But if you scroll down, you'll see that it's going into the footer because the section is not tall enough. So let's go back into editor mode. Sometimes, the section size automatically resizes after you go back into editor mode like it did here, but if not, then just hover over the section and then click and drag the blue arrows at the bottom to make it taller or shorter.
