

One thing you may have noticed on the Future Builders Foundation website is a donation form on the Donate and Zakat pages. Users have the option to set a one-time or monthly donation, and they can choose one of these pre-set amounts or donate an amount of their choosing. These forms were created using Zeffy, which is a free fundraising software. Let's head on over to Zeffy.com to see what that looks like on the back end.

Here is the Zeffy account for the organization. The homepage shows an overview and a graph of how much funds have been raised. Right now we are at zero since we are just starting out, but InshaAllah this number will be higher very soon. Let me show you how I put the forms on the website. To view the forms, click 'Forms' on the left hand side.

Over here you can see that we created two forms: one for general donations and one for Zakat. While these two forms themselves are identical, we made them separate so that we can track how many of the donations were given as Zakat. To create a new form, we can go here to where it says 'Create form'. Here, it will ask questions about the type of form you want, and then ask you to answer some questions like the title and description of the form, among other things. The Donate and Zakat forms are both Donation forms.

Since we already have those forms created, there is no need to create new forms, we will just be working with those forms. The next video will show you how to embed the forms on a Hostinger site.
